Almost without exception the trade pub lications are taking a more hopeful view o the immediate future and of the year' business, and the general state of trade though not so vigorous as could be wished, gives a substantial basis to rest the hope

Coal ought to command better prices to insure safe business to the operator and employment at good wages to the miner. The iron and steel trade shows signs of a revival, though many manufac turers continue to take a view which, if not despondent, is far from rosy. But in this line prices seem to be fairly maintained. Steel rails show an upward tendency orders at $43 a ton being refused in th At the same time we hear of furnaces going out of blast; though how much of this is owing to an actual lack of demand and how much to the pending readjust ment of wages is difficult to determine. Outside of coal and iron there is a much better feeling, accompanied, it is true, by an undefined unessiness which the condition of affairs does not seem to warrant.

If we turn to the March business of the railroads, and to that for the quarter ending with March, we find excellent results sixty six railroads, representing the enormous total of 51,622 miles; and these show an increase of $3,375,000. or 17 per cent in business, as compared with March of 1882, at which period also the returns showed a large growth. The comparison of March for four years is interesting-in 1880, an increase of 28 per cent; in 1881, of 9 per cent; in 1882 of 22 per cent; in 1883, of 17 per cent. The only falling back is in increase, but the general improvement is sustained. The western roads once more make the best showing, owing to the recent free movement of grain held back during the winter after plentiful harvests, and now induced by large stocks at home, fair demand abroad and low ocean freights to seek foreign markets.

The crop probabilities for the presen year are variously viewed, though the outlook is generally admitted to be not only better than at the last report from the Agricultural Department, but there is thought to be promise of an average crop. relieve the backwardness of the season. There is no doubt that a large part of last year's crop remains in producers' hands; this is new seeking ket and the returns will put more money in circulation. Prices, it is true ot satisfactory to the farmer, but a speedy improvement is not looked for, and his will doubtless lead to freer sales. This does not seem to be a good time to hold on to wheat, among other reasons because of the great supply of corn in sight.

There is nothing in the outlook to further depress business, unless it be taken for granted that manufacturers and their emsloyes will be unable to agree, a calamity which it is to be hoped is not in store fo the country. Where both sides are rea sonable on a question of deep interest to each, it is always possible to arrive at fai

Rev. J. L. Tucker, of Jackson, Miss., in a book called "The Relations of the Church to the Colored Race," says that the religion of the Southern negro is "uncoascious hypocrisy." One Sunday afterneon Mr. Tucker undertrook to explain to a school of colored people the Ten Commandments. It broke up the school, and the occasion was long remembered as a warning to the colored people to stick to their own religion and let that of the white folks alone.

that's how he came to be one of them.

The Hon. Henry D. McDaniel, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Georgia, was born in Walton county, that State, forty-six years ago. He was graduated at Mercer University, Georgia, and began the practice of law at Monroe in 1850. He was a delegate to the Secssion Convention, and went with the Eleventh Georgia to the army as First Lieutenant. He became a Major in 1853, was so severely wounded at Gettysburg that his life was despaired of, and until the end of the war he laid in the hospital. He was a member of the Conand until the end of the war he late in the hospital. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1865, when disabilities were removed. In 1872 he was elected a member of the Lower House, in which he served two years. He was then promoted to the Senate and remained there eight years, declining re-election. Though he stammers, he is one of the most successive leavers in the State, and a man of spotful lawyers in the State, and a man of spot-less reputation. Personally he is very popular, and telegrams of congratulation from all over the State have poured in on
